

THE EAST TENNESSEE UNION FLAG.

THE UNION FLAG

Jonesboro', September 28, 1866.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Concert for the Benefit of Miss Jones.
This is a noble and benevolent object and a generous public will not fail to attend the Concert. "Everybody" should be there with open hearts, and cast in their mite for the benefit of one who can nevermore look upon the beauty and grandeur of this world.

Tennessee Wesleyan College.

The College at Athens, Tennessee, formerly under the auspices of the Methodist Church, has been sold for debt, and is now in the possession of the old Methodist Episcopal Church; the authorities of that Church having purchased it on the 6th inst. P. C. Wilson, A. M., of Loudon, Tennessee, has been elected President, and we are informed that the first session will commence on the 25th of this month. Mr. Wilson has the reputation of being one of the finest scholars in the State. We trust that our people will liberally patronize this institution of learning. We are truly glad to see institutions of learning springing up all over our land, portends a bright future. May success attend all efforts of a similar character.

For the past few days we have had gentle showers, making turnips and other vegetables flourish finely. The accounts from the North-west are disengaging. They have had such long-continued and heavy rains as to wash away and destroy thousands of dollars worth of property. Railroad bridges, houses, barns, and nearly every movable have met the fate of the "rushing waters." We trust we will be spared the same disastrous, equinoctial storm.

Dunes Fair.—The greatest abundance of this staple has been disposed of to our merchants by the farmers during the past week, the prices ranging at six dollars per bushel for potatoes, and two dollars for apples. Thousands of bushels yet remain unsold, mostly holding their fruit back in the hope that prices will take a rise. The fruit crop has been unusually good this year—while the season has not been surpassed for drying purposes.

IS IT SO?

We are informed by one of Sullivan County's best and most Union men, that the Rev. Rebel Miles, a local good Union man, from preaching in Dr. Ingle, he had to preach in an open grove. When will things cease? When will preachers of the gospel cease to meddle in political strife and keep pace with their vicious acts the fires of hell and damnation? We learn, also, that the Rev. Rebel Miles aided by other Recommittee rebels, has instituted suit to recover the M. E. Church property to the discredited and defeated Rebel Church South. It is true, there is activity in the South—but whenever they get the property of the M. E. Church out of the hands of the royal people of this place, we trust they will kiss their horns, and let us know it! H. B.

Mr. George Jones, an old and much respected citizen of Greeneville, Tenn., died last week.

FALL FWD.—Any person furnishing us a copy of Hon. T. A. R. Nelson's Address to the People of East Tennessee, published in 1862, in which he advised the people to take up arms against the Union, will receive our sincere thanks. Please let us have it immediately.

Will some of our friends give us a list of those who favor the infamous bill by the Rev. Rebel Miles in the Circuit Court in this place? We desire the public to know who they are.

Nothing can save the inevitable collapse of the Copper-johnson party—not even loans and rapid removals. The capture of Lee and Johnston will be nothing to the final catastrophe—the only difference in favor of their defeated friends will be that the latter will have fuller coffers and a more abundant commissioner.

The Circus.

Tomorrow is the day for Haight & Chambers' Colossal Circus to exhibit in this place. From the great success they are meeting with at other places, we may expect a splendid company, and one people may expect something extra. The people will be in town to see.

FALL FRANCH SEMINARY

The trustees of the Fall Branch Seminary, have accepted the services of the Rev. Joseph S. Brown, as their new teacher of the Latin and Greek language. He will teach at Fall Branch, Tennessee, where he was a student for three years, and studied New Testament, Greek and Hebrew, particularly with young men preparing for the ministry. He will study Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and the Principal at Fall Branch, Washington University.
